Progress note on Milton Cyclebridge

We are pleased to be able to report that although there has been a further delay the design of the new bridge is now entering its final stages. We would have made better progress, but the behaviour of the Millennium Bridge in London when it was first opened caused the design of our bridge to be reviewed, because of its slender form.

The science of the prediction of the dynamic effects of pedestrians on lightweight bridges is a relatively new area of knowledge. As a result it has taken more time than originally envisaged to identify the criteria that should be applied to the cyclebridge to cover this aspect. This exercise is now virtually completed and the bridge designers are working hard to identify what this means for the final design.

It is now expected that work will start in the autumn and completion in summer 2003.

The Noise

On May 3rd-6th 2002 many youth groups and churches across the country did something ambitious, they took part in a project called 'The Noise'. The aim of the project was to reach out to the community and to demonstrate that "Actions speak louder than Words". The Noise is about people practically serving their community.

In Milton the people of All Saints' Church got involved in The Noise, setting out to have a productive weekend that would benefit Milton. Not only were the youth involved with the project but people young and old also set out to help. The Noise goes on throughout the year and anyone can help at anytime.

The youth group brainstormed some ideas for the Noise at Hengrave Hall during their weekend away and came up with some excellent suggestions such as: planting trees, litter picking, car washing, scrubbing the bus shelters, children's praise party, a church service with praise and prayer for the nations, work with the elderly, cleaning graffiti and planting bulbs. As we only had 4 days for the project we had to leave some of the ideas for a later date. We decided that the main things to focus on for the weekend were litter picking, cleaning graffiti, the children's praise party and the service for the nations. Two of the people involved in the project sent a letter to the council asking if we could do The Noise in Milton and if there was anything in particular that they wanted us to do. We received a reply that the council was keen for us to go ahead with the project.

We started each day at 1.30pm with songs and prayer in the Church and then we got started in the village! We split up into three teams, a litter picking team, a graffiti team, and a prayer team. We picked up litter across Milton but especially in the Community Centre Recreation ground, The Sycamores, and around Tesco. The graffiti team successfully managed to clear the Perspex bus shelter of graffiti. We weren't as successful with the brick bus shelter as the graffiti was very difficult to get off. The prayer team stayed in the Church and prayed that what we were doing wouldn't be missed and we would make a difference in Milton. A very important part of The Noise was that whilst cleaning the graffiti and picking up the litter we were praying for the people that sprayed the graffiti onto the shelters and the people who had dropped the litter. We had quite a lot of people interested in what we were doing and asking questions about The Noise, which was encouraging. We had a church service a week before the project on April 28th 2002 where we praised God for our nation and prayed for The Noise project, our community, and our nation. Another idea for The Noise was to have a children's praise party. "The Big Noise", on Monday 6th May, was aimed at primary school age children and about 50 children came to join in the fun. The party included songs, stories, sweets, agenes and surprises! The children had a great time and by the end of the party the church was covered in confectioned. had a great time and by the end of the party the church was covered in confetti and balloons! At about 5 o'clock we went back to the church for a much needed cup of tea with a bite to eat as well!

We had a very fun and productive weekend, we hope that we have reached out to Milton and we hope, if the council will let us!, to carry on doing more Noise projects in the future. We would like to thank the council for letting us do The Noise in Milton and a big thank you for everyone who made the project so successful especially Jackie and Neil Hutchinson who were organising The Noise months before the weekend.

Milton's Royal Connection

In this year of the Golden Jubilee it seems appropriate to consider a particular royal link with Milton and to point out that the village has had many more royal visits than most people probably realise. Why is this? The special trains that conveyed members of the Royal Family between London and the Royal Estate at Sandringham, in Norfolk, have regularly passed through the village.

The Sandringham Estate, where the Royal Family traditionally spend their Christmas holiday, used to have its own private station at Wolferton, which was linked to the branch line running north from King's Lynn to Hunstanton. When the Hunstanton line closed, Royal Trains continued to run as far as King's Lynn, and the Royal party completed their journey on to Sandringham by road. Although the main King's Lynn to London line, via Cambridge, ran to Liverpool Street, the Royal Trains always operated to and from King's Cross. This was because it avoided the hassle (sorry, ancient ceremony) that is involved whenever the reigning monarch enters the City of London (in which, of course, Liverpool Street Station is situated).

While the majority of these Royal Trains passed through Milton largely unnoticed by the local population, there was one particular and poignant occasion that occurred fifty years ago. On 7th February 1952 King George VI died in his sleep at Sandringham. On Monday 11th February a special train conveyed his body to London, passing through Milton on the way. (For the benefit of steam enthusiasts I can tell you that it was headed by the standard class "7" 4-6-2 locomotive no. 70000,

"Britannia".)

The event was reported on the front page of the Cambridge Daily News. Although giving no mention of Milton, it recorded the train's passage through Ely, Waterbeach, Cambridge and Foxton. At every vantage point along the way silent crowds watched as the train passed, travelling slowly southwards at only 15 - 20 mph. Local councillors stood solemnly on the station platform at Ely; the Mayor and other dignitaries did the same at Cambridge. The paper also noted: "At the little village station of Waterbeach, about 100 housewives, farm-workers and children had gathered by the time the train was due to arrive. Just after five past one the crossing gates were closed, the signal went up, a bell sounded in the signal box, and smoke could be seen above the trees. Although the train passed fairly slowly through the station it all seemed to be over in a flash.'

Cambridge was one of three locations along the route at which reserve engines were waiting, polished up and in steam, in case of any breakdown. But they were not needed; the train arrived at King's Cross exactly on time at 2.55 pm. At 3 pm the funeral procession left the London terminus for Westminster Hall and the Lying in State.

Does anyone in Milton remember this occasion, I wonder, and did anyone take a photograph of the train as it passed through the village? Roy Henderson

MILTON 2000 - MINUS A YEAR OR TWO

BY HARRY MISSING - continued from April issue

The farm itself was described as Arable, rotating on a mixture of crops, Wheat, Barley Oats, Sugar Beet, Mangel-wurzel, Kale and occasionally Potatoes. It was well stocked, breeding Pigs, Sheep, Cows and Horses, initially Heavy Shire, with of course a large number of Poultry free ranging in the Stack Yard. It prided itself in its possession of its own Traction Engine and Thrashing/Chaff cutting unit, which meant that it was independent of the only two other units in Milton, one owned by a Mr Coulson and the other by the Milton Smallholders Co-operative Society. Other equipment such as Binders, Grass Cutters, Seed Drills, Ploughs etc. where to hand. There was also an old Fordson Tractor which we didn't talk about too much. Father hated it, probably because he couldn't drive, although he said he just preferred horses and that the heavy metal wheels and the general overall weight of the thing compacted the land too much, but it looked nice and impressive standing in the Cart Shed. Start it up though, and it would immediately rattle, shake and then disappear under a cloud of its own exhaust fumes. It was probably about this time that the first news of a damaged ozone layer came to be reported, so it is perhaps gratifying to know now that this prestige piece of equipment became little used for any serious farm work. There were of course a number of farm workers employed, mostly drawn from the Chesterton area, where the Greens lived and had the Dairy Farm. I will write more of them after their return from World War 1 when I became acquainted with them personally.

Perhaps fortunately for both my Sister and I, Father was designated as of Reserved Occupation when in 1914 war was declared. Routine at the farm, I was told, continued much as before with the business of sowing and harvesting becoming increasingly important. Shortage of labour meant that Mother took a hand, bird scaring with a shotgun at seed time and 'driving away' at harvest. Efforts were concentrated on destroying all vermin, particularly Rats. When a rat was killed its tail was removed and taken by my brother to a Mrs George Pearson who lived next to the village Schoolmaster's House in Fen Road, whereupon he would receive the princely sun of 2d for each tail. She, in turn, disposed of the tails over her rear garden wall into the field that also backed onto the rear playground of the School next door. The wall was low and could easily be looked over by the senior children and yes, you've guessed it, their natural entrepreneurial instincts clicked in and the tails made a number of journeys through the Pearson household.

Children also played a part in working on the farm during this war period. The hoeing of weeds, chopping out (thinning) root crops were not too arduous a job for young lads just in their teens. In fact, come the summer of 1918, any lad of 13 years of age was allowed to leave school provided he worked on the land. My brother promptly took this route and it was not too long before he was ploughing alongside Father. The seriousness of the food situation during the war was clearly illustrated when the Stack Yard had been gleaned pretty well bare by the chickens and father decided one day, to throw down some spare corn to improve their lot. This was illegal at the time and unfortunately father had failed to notice the local Policeman had appeared around the corner of the farm road. Being caught 'red handed', he was summond and fined 10/- (50p). Father's criminal record began and ended at this point with the pain of his disgrace eventually eased by the generosity of Mr Green, who paid the fine. The policeman, incidentally, some of you may remember, was a Mr Lander, (father of Mrs Fred Carlton, whom I believe, still lives in Butt Lane). When he retired from the Force in the early thirties, he took up residence in Milton, becoming the first Landlord of the newly rebuilt Wagon and Horses Public House. The Lander family, of which there were two or three daughters, played an active part in village life, Mrs Lander being the President of the Women's Institute for a number of years, whilst one of the daughters ran a small Sweet Shop in the centre of the village, (adjacent to the Blacksmiths Shop).

Milton Primary School

For the benefit of residents without children at the school, I would like to let you know about an exciting new development.

We have now equipped all of our classrooms with a ceiling mounted projector connected to an interactive whiteboard (or smartboard), both linked to a computer. Lessons can now be prepared on the computer and projected onto the smartboard. The board reacts with the computer when staff or children write on it. This technology potentially opens up some new and interesting ways of doing things in the classroom. The number of schools with smartboards in every classroom at the moment is minuscule so we are feeling very fortunate.

What will we be able to do with this new equipment?

- The smartboards are touch sensitive so we can write notes on the board either with a special pen or with a finger and save the notes to computer to use again another day if required. The software will also change handwriting into print.
- Everything that we would normally do at the PC with the mouse can be done by touching the smartboard. Any typing done on the PC can be projected onto the board.
- We can project any computer program onto the smartboard so that all the class can use the same program at the same time.
- Any writing on the board can be printed off and photocopied for use.
- The package comes with an extensive library of interactive software designed to be used on smartboards that enables us to increase the interest level of lessons and the participation of pupils.
- The internet can now be used for whole class lessons. We can access a whole range of information for schools and project it on to the boards, eg, maps can be displayed and annotated by the children and then printed out for their project folders.
- A video recorder can be linked to the projector for large screen viewing.

It is difficult to put into print how versatile this system is, but it is already clear that teachers are able to present things/lessons to children in a way that they could not before and that children's attention during lessons has improved.

Because the equipment will be in each classroom every day, it will become an everyday tool. With an IT suite, each class would have been allocated a time only once or twice a week. As such, we feel that the smartboard route is a much more effective one and, indeed, is the 21st century route.

Milton Primary School Achievement Award

Milton Primary school has been awarded an achievement award by the government for achieving results in the 2001 National tests above those of similar schools. The school is delighted as are the governors - a fitting testament to the high quality of teaching and learning, pupil attitudes and the effective leadership of the school.

The Bumps, back to basics.

Think of The Boat Race and the vast expanses of the Thames spring to mind. In contrast, a ten minute stroll down Fen Road will bring you to the Cam, an altogether more modest sight but just as steeped in rowing history. In the early 1800s a need for competitive rowing in Cambridge required some lateral thinking as side-by-side racing was not possible on the narrow waterway. Eventually it was decided to adopt Oxford's solution and hold 'single line astern' racing, commonly known as 'bumps'.

The idea was to catch the boat in front, which had a length and a half start, and make some form of physical contact (a bump). A successful crew would then swap places with the bumped boat for the following day's contest. After races on four consecutive days the crew out in front was crowned 'Head of the River'. This format has remained essentially unchanged since the establishment of the Cambridge University Boat Club in 1826, which was formed specifically to compete in this type of event.

Town and gown both hold their own versions of these races. The University have Lent bumps in February, and, with true British eccentricity, May bumps in June. The town equivalent are always held at the end of July.

Historically, races have always been started by the firing of a small cannon at the gun shed alongside the A14 road bridge. Crews then race down to the finish near the Pike and Eel public house in Chesterton accompanied, on dry land, by a 'tidal wave' of supporters on bikes.

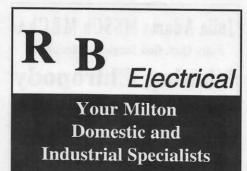

Villager Frank Galbraith first rowed in the town bumps for Rob Roy Boat Club in 1948. In 1995, at the tender age of 69, he became the oldest competitor ever to row in the event. "I don't row now, although I am a Life Member of Rob Roy," he said. "These days its bowls in the summer and crib in the winter." Frank's lounge wall is adorned with ancient rowing photos going back to 1890 which he is very proud to have rescued from probable oblivion some years ago.

Today, boat clubs like Rob Roy, '99, and City are household names in the Cambridge area but in 1868, the first recorded running of the Town bumps, clubs like The Albert Institute and United College Servants were the names on everybody's lips.

This summer, there is absolutely no need for newcomers to the area to dive for cover as the sound of distant cannon fire reverberates around the village. Instead, they may like to take a stroll along the towpath, it's quite an experience!

Youth Workers Wanted

Care Ouest

For many people, the realisation that they can no longer mange to do all they used to is difficult to accept. It could come about gradually with advancing years, or more suddenly as the result of an illness or accident. While residential homes and sheltered housing may provide the answer for some, others are reluctant to leave their homes of many years and the neighbourhood where they have friends and relatives. Home care workers can often supply the additional help needed to enable people to maintain the independence of their own homes.

CareQuest Services is based in High Street, Milton, and employs about 200 carers and provides both hourly and Livein carers. It serves a 20 mile radius around Cambridge, and is now part of Careforce Staffing which also operates in other parts of the country.

CareQuest has welcomed the provisions of the new Care Standards act and is now running training courses for carers almost weekly at its Milton office and encouraging all its carers to study for NVQ qualifications.

So if you need a little help, or feel you would like to work as a carer (there's no upper age limit, providing you are over 18 and reasonably fit!) telephone 01223 508100.

'Exposed by the Trowel'

Continuing with the theme of the Romans establishing an infrastructure for transport in the Milton area, we will turn from roads to canals. Although just outside our parish in Waterbeach, but significant to Roman industry in Milton, we have the Car Dyke. This Dyke (Car means overgrown with reeds and shrubs) is a Scheduled Ancient Monument which is clearly seen running South East towards the railway from the left bend in the Car Dyke Road before the first houses in Waterbeach; there is a public access from the road. The section of the Dyke connecting to the River Cam from the railway has long since been filled in as part of a field.

During the last 10 years, the County Council Archaeological Field Unit has reviewed the status of the Car Dyke with excavations which are summarized as follows. The Romans excavated the Dyke as part of a canal system which linked the Cam with the Ouse, Nene, Welland and Witham at Lincoln so that goods particularly grain, flour and pottery could be transported North to the legions at Lincoln, York and beyond. The canal complex was also part of a drainage system. The Dyke is 122 km long with 10 scheduled sections totalling 33 km. Initial construction occurred in the 1st Century AD after the Boudiccan revolt of 60 AD, and at Waterbeach it was 13 m wide with a 9 m deep gulley in the middle. As a transport system, the Dyke peaked in the 2nd Century AD but was mostly redundant for continuous navigation by the 4th Century AD. Excavations in 1997 (in press) revealed that the Dyke's junction with the Cam where a field now exists to the West of the towpath, was a significant Roman port with extensive wharf buildings, kilns etc. Containers for transporting grain, and other pottery along the Dyke, will be the subject of the next article. Reminder, any finds of potential archaeological interest contact Jim Daniels, Tel/Fax 861447 or E-mail: clerk@miltonvillage.org.uk

U15's

After early exits from cup competitions, we concentrated on the league and after half our fixtures were in 2nd position and showing good form.

Unfortunately, the long Christmas lay off didn't work to our advantage, we showed some rustiness in coming back for the end of season run-in. Still, we finished a respectful 6th, (mid-table).

Played...20 Won...9 Drawn...2 Lost....9. (+2 cup games)
Kriss Tolliday was our leading scorer, with 42 goals, a fantastic strike rate for 22 games. Marc Booth deservedly won "Players Player of the Year"; he adapted well to many roles throughout the season and was instrumental in much of the play. Michael Prater won "Most Improved Player", a formidable and reliable defender, his confidence grew as the season progressed.

Well Donethe whole squad of 17 players.

We overcame the set back of two opening league defeats, and recovered to be promotion challengers right up until the last couple of weeks, finally finishing fourth missing out on third spot only on goal difference.

Played...14 Won...8, Drawn...2 Lost...4

The highlight of our league campaign was a fantastic 3-2 win over the eventual champions, Fulbourn Falcons, which was their one and only loss of the season.

All the squad played their part with every player showing some improvement over last year. Special mention must go to Rob Tyler who progressed to represent both Cambridge Schools and The League Representative side in goal and to Daniel Turberville who was involved with Cambridge Utd. Rob Tyler was a deserved winner of the Most Improved Player Award and Terry Curtis ran away with the coveted Players Player of the Year Award.

We look forward to a successful season next year.

Following last years success in "mini-soccer", the boys were placed in Division B and found themselves up against teams who had already experienced a full season of playing 11-a-side. After a slow start, we showed a vast improvement going into the second half of the season, winning 4 of the last 5 matches, finishing a creditable 7th.

Top scorer was Adam Coles with 12 goals, "Players Player of the Year" was Simon Coston, and Chris Medd was voted "Supporters Player of the Year".

The squad are to be congratulated for their behaviour, both on and off the pitch.

The boys produced another successful season, their achievements included winning both the league championship and the inter-divisional "Frank Moden Trophy", together with appearances in two cup quarter finals. The league form was excellent with only one defeat throughout the season. Outside of the Cambs. Colt League the boys were proud to represent the village in the East Anglian Cup and performed magnificently in reaching the last sixteen, a run that included a 2-0 victory away to Purfleet, the match being played at the Ryman League Club's stadium. "Team Player of the Year" was won by Martin Coston whilst "Players Player of the Year" went to Joshua Morris.

The team can look back with great satisfaction on these seasons' achievements.

The above awards were presented at the first of two of our "Disco-Buffet Presentation Evenings" on Saturday 4th May.

(Milton Colts run boys teams from U8's to U15's, and girls U12's and U13's.)
